Poster submissions

- QIP poster policy: accept unless it's clearly wrong or off-topic
- 1st round (Sep 25): 101 posters accepted from rejected talks*
- 2nd round (Oct 23): 54 more posters submissions, all accepted
- Posters based on late submissions were not allowed
- Note: when deciding on the accepted talks, PC considers the talk-only and talk-or-poster submissions the same way

* Two talk submissions were withdrawn and converted to poster-only

Open questions

- Reactions to the parallel sessions?
- How many talks should QIP accept?
 - ? A full schedule, say, with a few long plenary talks combined with several short and/or parallel session talks
 - ? A light schedule, say, consisting of a few long talks about major breakthroughs, with significant blocks of free time for interactions

There is a wide range of views among the current PC members
